PROPER WANTS ASSASSINATION PAPERS OPENED

Some, I'm afraid, feel that we should change the current system where the President is the head of the Executive branch and a member of the Cabinet. However, I believe that this is not the best solution. Instead, I propose that we have a Prime Minister who would be responsible for the day-to-day running of the government.

The other transition is to have a constitutional crisis in the country. This could happen if there is a vote of no confidence in the current government. In such a case, the President would have to step down and a new government would be formed. This would ensure that the current administration is replaced with a new one that is more representative of the people.

I therefore believe that the current system is the best one for the country. It ensures that the President is accountable to the people, while also providing stability and continuity in government.
